PARKER'S JOB WON'T DISTURB CONDITIONS

Special to Daily Leader, Muskogee, Okla., May 7.—J. George Wright, commissioner to the Five Civilized Tribes, says that the new position of general attorney for the Five Nations created by the secretary of interior and offered to Luman F. Parker, of Vinita, at a salary of $5,000 per year, will not interfere with the present office of attorneys for the different nations.

The new attorney will act as general counsel for the commissioner and the Indian agent in all matters of litigation which involve either of the five nations in a general way. The federal district attorney has usually attended to such matters but he now has too much business of his own.

Just Like A Bag Of Rags

Why isn't my wife as snappy and fashionable as Mrs. Smith instead of always looking as if she had just been pulled through a knothole.

Uncomfortable, isn't she? Needs a new dressmaker? Not at all. Her clothes are all right. It's just a matter of poor fitting corsets, that's all. A little care, just insisting upon a Kaho Corset and a positive refusal to accept any other and she will be as happy, trim and well dressed as any woman.

How many times do you suppose your husband asks himself this question? Of course he says nothing to you. He wouldn't do that for the world. But don't you suppose he thinks it just the same? He wants you to look your best. He wants you to be just as smart and spry and as good as Mrs. Smith or Mrs. Johnson or Mrs. Jones or Mrs. Anybody else. He wants you to keep your youth and your figure and be the same with some self you were in your girlhood days. If women would only appreciate this fact, if they would only realize that to look her best, a woman has only to select her clothes with care and, above all else, secure corsets adapted to bring out her figure to the best advantage and give her a proper carriage, there would be more contented husbands.

It isn't a difficult matter to get corsets that will add one half to your appearance. Just refuse to ever accept any corset but the Kaho Corset and the problem is solved. There is a Kaho Corset for every figure and every effect any woman or dressmaker could wish. And they are all as near perfect perfection as you will ever see in this world. It doesn't matter what sort of a figure you have—short, long, stout or thin—there is a Kaho style for you that will set an every line of your figure to the best advantage and give you the reputation of being a stylish woman.

Kaho corsets are not only correct in style, but in quality, workmanship, materials and trimmings they are the best the market affords. Every Kaho corset has the absolute non-rotatable loop facing. This is the greatest improvement known to modern corset making and is found in Kaho corsets only. You can pay $7 for a pair of corsets, but you won't get any better corset, any more style, or more wear than you will from a Kaho, which sells for $10.00 to $15.00 according to style, etc. You save money in buying the Kaho. See that the next corset you buy is a Kaho. You will not be disappointed.

The new Kaho style book is now ready. It shows styles for every figure and will be sent free upon request. Address Kaho Corset Co., Dept. 26, Chicago. This book will help you get the most out of your clothes.

J. W. Smith, Manchester, Post of the Third House, Jan. Jerkins, Ann Arbor, Sergeant-at-Arms, Representative J. Vandavey, Noble, Doorkeeper, Henry H. Allen, Davis, Pinner, (Senate) Christy Russell, Stanley Landrum, Pages, (House) Richard Houston, Executive Committee, Senator J. A. Morris, House, Representative J. A. Tillotson, Nowata; Representative A. H. Ellis, Okemah; Senator H. H. Holman, Wetumka; Representative C. G. Jones, Oklahoma.

Judge J. H. Burford filed in the office of the clerk of the district court a suit for Clara B. Austin asking a divorce from J. S. Austin and division of property. The plaintiff recites in her petition that they were married in Illinois in 1884 and that three years ago they moved to Tulsa. She alleges that two years ago he beat and struck her and often whipped her unmercifully, finally driving her from her home.

FREAK OF THE TIDES.

At the Mouth of St. John River, Where Water Flows Up Hill.

Speaking of freaks of the tide, there is nothing in this world to equal the phenomenon at the mouth of the St. John river, where water flows up hill and down twice daily. These reversing falls are in a class by themselves in the world's natural curiosities.

The rise of the tide in the bay of Fundy, which ranges up to sixty feet, averages at St. John harbor twenty-eight or thirty feet.

At the mouth of the St. John river the great body of water is forced through a deep and narrow gorge. On the one side of this gorge the harbor opens; above it the St. John river, nearly 500 miles long, stretches away into the province of Quebec.

When the tide in the bay of Fundy is on the flow, the waters rise with such rapidity that the level in the harbor becomes in less than an hour considerably higher than the level in the river.

The water is forced through the gorge at such a rate that it literally falls up into the river, the height of this fall reaching at times fourteen feet. So great is the area of the river, so great is the amount of water rising in the harbor and so narrow is the gorge that it would take hours longer than the interval of any tide to bring the river level up to that of the harbor at high water.

As a consequence, after the tide has turned and is on the ebb in the harbor, the level is still so much higher than the river that the tide in the river continues to rise for two or three hours the water still falling upward.

The same force works in the flow. After the water in the harbor has fallen until the level in the harbor and in the river are the same the fall downward begins. During the next few hours the harbor recedes until the drop from the river to the harbor is as much as sixteen or seventeen feet at the very lowest tide. Once more the tide turns upward and comes up quickly, but over three hours elapse before it is sufficiently high to counteract the downward flow from the river.

At half tide there is a period of something less than an hour when navigation is impossible. — Boston Globe.

WORTHLESS TESTIMONY.

The Way a Keen Irish Lawyer Worried Anthony Trollope.

Among the stories in "Pages From an Adventurous Life," by J. E. Preston-Muddock, is one that Lord Alverstone was wont to tell with appreciation. In a postoffice prosecution at Hertford assizes a clever Irish barrister appeared for the defendant, who was a poor letter carrier guilty of some irregularity. Among the witnesses was Anthony Trollope, then a government postoffice inspector. After he had given his testimony he was handed over to the lawyer for the defense for cross examination.

"What are you?" demanded the keen Irishman in a severe and commanding tone accompanied with a fishy brogue.

"An official in the postoffice," answered Trollope, somewhat astonished by the lawyer's brusqueness.

"Anything else?" demanded the cross examiner, with a snap.

"Yes; an author." This a little proudly.

"What is the name of your last book?"

"Harcroft Towers."

"Now, tell me, is there a word of truth in that book?"

"Well, it is what is generally called a work of fiction."

"Fiction! With a scornful curl of the lip, 'Fiction! That is to say, there isn't a word of truth in it from beginning to end?'"

"I am afraid if you put it that way there isn't," stammered Trollope in an embarrassed way.

With a triumphant air, the lawyer turned to the jury.

"Gentlemen," he exclaimed, "how can you possibly convict a man on the evidence of a witness like this, who here in this court of justice unblushingly confesses that he has written a book in which there isn't one word of truth?"

Trollope had fallen gloriously into the pit dug for him by his unscrupulous cross examiner.

Long Lived Icelanders.

It would be interesting to know if any part of the world beats Iceland in the average length of life of its inhabitants. It is shown by statistics that on an average the people of that island live to the age of 61.5 years, which is very nearly double the mean duration of human life as it was computed a generation ago. Sweden and Norway are regarded as very healthful countries, but Iceland takes the palm in longevity, the mean duration of life in Sweden being 50.02 years and in Norway 49.94 years.

Some of Iceland's earthquakes are nerve racking; but, on the whole, the lives of most of its simple and industrious inhabitants slip along with few incidents that unduly stimulate or depress the pulse. Summer and winter the same old-mail boat from Letha steams into the harbor of Reykjavik every three weeks, but very rarely brings news that touches Iceland so closely as to make excitement. In fact the little island enjoys many of the advantages of civilization and avoids most of its drawbacks.—Christian Advocate.

Special to Daily Leader.

Okmulgee, Okla., May 7.—W. M. Bryant, a five-year-old boy at this place disappeared last Friday and his traces of him have been found. His horse and buggy were found later in a large pasture a mile from the road. There was a bullet hole in the back of the seat, but there was no blood on the body, anywhere. The general impression is that Bryant was murdered for his money.

Feet of the Ancient Greeks.

A walk through the British museum and a close examination of the pedimental extremities of ancient art there show they are all about the feet. "The Disk Thrower," a celebrated specimen, has particularly bad examples of ineffectual banion joints. If the foot of the Farnese Apollo, used as a model in most art schools, represents the foot of the average Greek corn and bunions must have been common in that classical country.—British Shoemaker.

His Counting Habit.

"Your husband says that when he is angry he always counts ten before he speaks," said one woman.

"Yes," answered the other. "I wish he'd stop it. Since he got dyspepsia home seems nothing but a class in arithmetic."—London Mail.
